

GDPR & Your Data

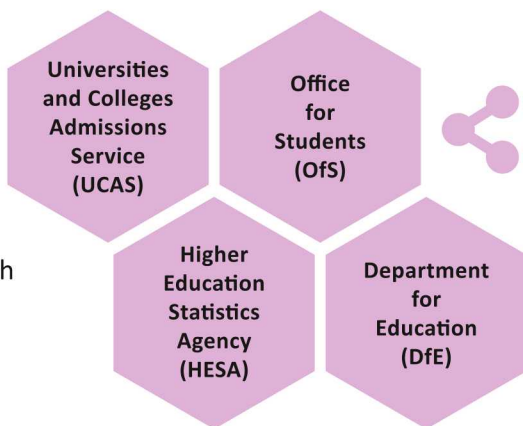

Every time you take part in an outreach activity arranged by us at the Humber Outreach Programme & the University of Hull, we will collect personal data from you. This data helps us to deliver and evaluate each activity, meaning we can keep an eye on how successful our activities are. This data will be held in accordance with the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).

We will share your personal data with the Higher Education Access Tracker service (HEAT), which is managed and led by the University of Kent.

HEAT will store and process your data on our behalf, and they can use it for statistics and reports.

HEAT may share your data with other national teams to help track your progress through education. These are:

We process your personal data to allow us to perform a task carried out in the public interest. Our legal basis for this is Public Task.

We will collect the following necessary personal data from you:

- legal first name
- date of birth
- legal last name
- postcode
- current school/college
- gender

The GDPR provides you with a number of rights to your personal data.

You have the right to:

- ✓ have inaccurate personal data rectified
- ✓ ask for a copy of the information we have about you
- ✓ complain to the Information Commissioner's Office about the way we process your personal data

If you want any more information you can visit the University of Hull Governance and Information Compliance web pages or email:

dataprotection@hull.ac.uk

The University of Hull is a registered data controller with the Information Commissioner's Office. The registered address is:
The University of Hull, Cottingham Road, Hull, HU6 7RX